Sexual & Reproductive Health
Care, Education, Advocacy.

Nurses play a vital role in sexual and reproductive health service provision through health promotion and education, assessment and screening.

Family Planning Victoria is the leading provider of professional education in this field and offers courses for Division 1 nurses practising in primary health, community and school settings.

Courses

1. Comprehensive Sexual and Reproductive Health (Nursing) course - theory
2. Pap test and Introduction to Sexual Health (Nursing) course

Both courses are accredited by the Royal College of Nursing, Australia.

To undertake the courses, you must have at least two years' post registration experience. To undertake the necessary clinical placements, you must be a Registered Nurse Division One and hold current registration in Victoria.

After completing each course you will receive a Certificate of Completion.

Nurses who successfully complete both courses will receive the Certificate in Sexual and Reproductive Health (Nursing).

If you wish to undertake the full certificate, you must complete both courses within two years. We recommend you complete the courses in the above order to minimise your workload and the number of clinical placements. However, flexible arrangements will be considered.

Recognition of Prior Learning is available to nurses who seek credits for previous study and/or existing skills (fees apply).

Comprehensive Sexual and Reproductive Health (Nursing)

15-19 June 2009 OR

31 August - 4 September 2009

This five-day course provides up-to-date, evidence-based information on broader issues in sexual and reproductive health. It has a strong focus on contraception and sexually transmissible infections. It explores the physiological, social and environmental aspects of sexual and reproductive health, using current research findings, clinical guidelines and the knowledge and expertise of experts in the field.

Pap test and Introduction to Sexual Health (Nursing)

27-30 April 2009 OR

20-23 July 2009 OR

19-22 Oct 2009

This four-day course will enable you to develop the clinical knowledge required to become a Pap test provider. It includes intensive sessions on your role and practice as a Pap test provider, and introduces the topics of contraception, sexually transmissible infections and breast health.

To complete this course, participants must undertake clinical placements and assessments with approved Victorian preceptors. During placements, participants must complete a minimum of 15 Pap tests. The time taken to complete these varies between students but most students need approximately 50 hours. Placements must be completed within six months. This can be very demanding alongside workbook submission, paid work and personal commitments, so please consider this carefully when applying and refer to the Acknowledgement form* for the Pap test & Introduction to Sexual Health (Nursing) course. This form is to be completed and returned with your registration form.

Please note: Course participants must organise their own placements. The final assessment must take place at Family Planning Victoria.
